CHEMOTHERAPY

Chemotherapy is a cancer treatment where medicine is used to kill cancer cells.

There are many different types of chemotherapy medicine, but they all work in a similar way. They stop cancer cells reproducing, which prevents them from growing and spreading in the body.

Drug therapies include:

- Hormone therapy: Drugs that prevent certain cancers from getting the hormones they need to grow.
- Immunotherapy: Drugs that help your immune system fight cancer.
- Targeted therapy: Drugs that change how cancer cells multiply and behave.

A medical oncologist oversees treatment. These healthcare providers specialize in chemotherapy and other cancer-fighting drugs.

Chemotherapy may get used with surgery or radiation therapy to treat cancer.

The type of chemotherapy you receive depends on several factors:

- Location of the cancer.
- Stage of the cancer, or how advanced it is.
- Your overall health.

All is well...
High Dependency Units (HDUs), also called step-down, progressive and intermediate care units. HDUs are wards for people who need more intensive observation, treatment and nursing care than is possible in a general ward but slightly less than that given in intensive care.
